

I thought that the airwaves belong to the public. By allowing only a handful of groups to control them, the general public cannot be served. People have different and varied tastes and opinions, and if only a few large corporations control the broadcast media these differences cannot be represented. What we really need is more diversity of ownership, not less!